

District Councillors' Report Nov 2014

The 'Science Park' railway station

A range of options for land around the new railway station – bounded by the A14, Milton Road and the Cambridge King's Lynn railway line – are being considered. The kilometre square area is envisaged to include commercial space, housing and community facilities. Suggestions as to a name are also welcomed.

Building Control and surveyors

Proposals to merge the South Cambridgeshire and Huntingdonshire Building Control departments have been approved. The councils are now being recommended to bring the building surveyors under one management structure, saving £100,000 per year. In the meantime, the South Cambs. surveyors have been awarded the top national award for educational buildings – a new wing at Girton College comprising 50 study bedrooms, 50 kitchens and a sports' hub.

First World War centenary map

An interactive map to honour the 2,300 men from South Cambridgeshire villages who died fighting for their country in the First World War has been devised. The map plots each village war memorial as well as information about the district's wartime history. The system can be pinpointed by a soldier's name to memorials and tombstones.
